Valutek CEO Greg Heiland Featured in Phoenix Business Article
Valutek commits to growth, job creation, and revitalizing community

PHOENIX (MARCH 2011) — Valutek CEO Greg Heiland was chosen to participate in an Arizona Republic article on the City of Phoenix's New Markets Tax allocation. In the article, Valutek, an industry-leading manufacturer of cleanroom supplies, is highlighted as one of the Phoenix-area businesses taking advantage of the allocated funds. In turn, the company creates jobs to benefit nearby communities.

To receive the favorable financing, Phoenix businesses must first prove they are a credible business, and must also commit to growth in one of the city's "enterprise zones." These zones are areas of Phoenix where the poverty rate exceeds 30 percent.

"We committed to being a good corporate citizen," explained Heiland. "It's a great program because it gives us incentive to add staff, which in turn allows us to better serve our customers. At the same time, we create jobs for Phoenix residents and contribute to the revitalization of our communities."

With Valutek's commitment to growth, Phoenix is further benefitted as Valutek is the only Arizona-based manufacturer of critical environment supplies. "We are a local presence," added Heiland. "Because we provide local support to high-tech companies such as IBM, Phoenix is more likely to retain these kinds of businesses, and could attract new business in this sector."

Valutek is just one of several companies taking part in the program, which in total is estimated to have added or retained several thousand jobs in the Phoenix area.

ABOUT VALUTEK

The Outfitter of Cleanroom Operators — What is the No. 1 goal in a critical environment? To produce consistent and high-quality product and research, right? And that starts with a cleanroom's operators. You operate your controlled environment to ensure consistency of your product and research, and getting your operators to perform at their highest level is a very demanding task.

At Valutek, we get that.

With 23 years in the controlled environment industry, we know that a cleanroom can be a very uncomfortable place to work: it's cold, it's sterile and it's hard work. We know what operators care about when it comes to consumables: comfort, fit and function. We also know what matters to you: cost, quality and compliance. By using Valutek for all of your cleanroom consumable needs – from apparel to gloves, wipers to mops – operators can get back to concentrating on their critical tasks, not focusing on an uncomfortable garment.
